Course Goal:

The goal of this course is to provide students with a foundation in learning theory, instructional design, and information literacy instruction. With this foundation, students will be able to design, deliver, and evaluate instructional programs in a wide range of information service contexts, including but not limited to academic, special, school, and public libraries, media centres, and archives. Students will gain valuable skills in organizing learning activities, presenting material effectively, and addressing the needs of a wide range of users.

FNCC specialization: the assignments in this course can serve the requirements of the First Nations Curriculum Concentration (FNCC). If students would like to take this course for FNCC credit, they are invited to contact the instructor to discuss this option.

Course Objectives:

Upon completion of this course students will be able to:

- Describe the attributes of contemporary learners [1.1]
- Identify the learning needs of diverse user populations [1.1]
- Develop learning objectives for specific users [1.3]
- Identify, compare, and apply theories of learning and instruction [4.1]
- Apply the concept of information literacy to information-based teaching [1.3]
- Design lesson plans based on learning needs assessment [1.1]
- Select and organize pedagogical strategies to meet learning objectives [1.2]
- Deliver instruction face-to-face and online [2.1, 2.2, 5.3]
- Critique face-to-face instruction and e-learning objects [1.4]
- Develop formative and summative assessments for instructional activities [3.2, 4.2]
- Connect instructional practice with institutional goals and priorities [1.4, 5.2]
- Assess ethical situations in teaching and learning [5.1]

Attendance: The calendar states: “Regular attendance is expected of students in all their classes (including lectures, laboratories, tutorials, seminars, etc.). Students who neglect their academic work and assignments may be excluded from the final examinations. Students who are unavoidably absent because of illness or disability should report to their instructors on return to classes.”

To this I would add that student participation in class-based exercises is an important aspect of student evaluation. Students who miss three or more class sessions, regardless of reason, cannot achieve a passing mark in this course.

If you are absent, it is your responsibility to determine what material you missed, and to take steps to catch up. If you anticipate any issues with your attendance for extraordinary reasons, please inform me so that we can determine how to proceed.

Evaluation: All assignments will be marked using the evaluative criteria given on the SLAIS web site.

Access & Diversity: Access & Diversity works with the University to create an inclusive living and learning environment in which all students can thrive. The University accommodates students with disabilities who have registered with the Access and Diversity unit: <https://students.ubc.ca/about-student-services/access-diversity>].

You must register with the Disability Resource Centre to be granted special accommodations for any on-going conditions.

Religious Accommodation: The University accommodates students whose religious obligations conflict with attendance, submitting assignments, or completing scheduled tests and examinations. Please let your instructor know in advance, preferably in the first week of class, if you will require any accommodation on these grounds. Students who plan to be absent for family obligations, or other similar commitments, cannot assume they will be accommodated, and should discuss with the instructor before the course drop date. Academic Integrity

Plagiarism

The Faculty of Arts considers plagiarism to be the most serious academic offence that a student can commit. Regardless of whether or not it was committed intentionally, plagiarism has serious academic consequences and can result in expulsion from the university. Plagiarism involves the improper use of somebody else's words or ideas in one's work. The UBC policy on Academic Misconduct is available here: <http://www.calendar.ubc.ca/Vancouver/index.cfm?tree=3,54,111,959>.

It is your responsibility to make sure you fully understand what plagiarism is. Many students who think they understand plagiarism do in fact commit what UBC calls "reckless plagiarism." The UBC Learning Commons has a resource page on how to avoid plagiarism, with policies on academic integrity and misconduct found here: <http://learningcommons.ubc.ca/resource-guides/avoid-plagiarism/>

If after reading these materials you still are unsure about how to properly use sources in your work, please ask your instructor for clarification.
